

WHO WE ARE

Dr. Karin Humphries, Associate Professor Emeritus, Faculty of Medicine, University of British Columbia, in partnership with MOSAIC, one of the largest settlement non-profit organizations in Canada, is conducting a study to address the lack of disaggregated data about graduates of medical schools outside Canada and the United States to help remove barriers so that access to the medical profession is based on competence of the individual regardless of place of education, race, or age.

THE SURVEY

We want to learn more about how to help people who have obtained their medical degrees outside of Canada and are seeking to obtain licensure in Canada. This survey will help us learn more about any challenges and barriers you may have experienced during this process.

INSTRUCTIONS

We need your help! Please amplify our survey on your social media platforms and networks. You can use ready-made text and graphics to copy and paste and share with your followers. Below you'll find text for tweets, Facebook, & LinkedIn posts.

You can download an image to add to the tweets/posts here:

TWEET

Internationally trained medical doctors like you are facing barriers to working in Canada.

Take our 15-minute anonymous survey to help us understand your story so we can better advocate on your behalf: <https://bit.ly/3yKkeW2>

(@MOSAICBC)

FACEBOOK/LINKEDIN

Internationally trained medical doctors like you are facing barriers to finding work in Canada. Our country needs qualified medical doctors, yet it seems that barriers continue in the Canadian healthcare licensing system preventing qualified doctors from practicing in Canada. This has to stop.

@MOSAICBC received funding to collect and analyze data to propose changes to the licensing system to remove these barriers.

This survey is part of research seeking to address the lack of disaggregated data. The absence of this data is an impediment to pressing for change to a system which appears to disadvantage internationally trained doctors' access to medical licensing.

To help us better understand your experience so we can advocate on your behalf to remove the barriers to obtaining licensure in the Canadian healthcare system. To advocate effectively, we need to know more about you.

Take our 15-minute anonymous survey to help us better advocate and support you: <https://bit.ly/3yKkeW2>

If you have any questions, please contact:

Abde Amr
aamr@mosaicbc.org